Electronic Data Interchange Claims Release 3.1 Website Launched

In advance of its transition to a new electronic reporting release standard, the Nebraska Workers' Compensation Court has launched a new website for its Electronic Data Interchange (EDI) trading partners. The website will provide information needed by our trading partners to prepare and test their claims-processing systems to ensure they will be in compliance with the new release standard when it is launched in May 2019.

The website, hosted by ISO's Workers' Compensation Solutions division, provides information about the International Association of Industrial Accident Boards and Commissions (IAIABC) EDI Claims Release 3.1 reporting standard for first reports of injury (FROI) and subsequent reports of injury (SROI). The website, accessed at <https://nwccedi.info/>, includes the following features:

- Trading Partner Electronic Profiles Registration and instructions to be completed by all trading partners.
- Trading Partner training information.
- Claims Release 3.1 Implementation Guide and Requirement Tables.
- A list of EDI vendors that may assist with EDI reporting.
- Implementation information that will provide additional details regarding the EDI Reporting Requirements.
- Frequently Asked Questions (FAQ) for EDI.
- Helpful website links.

- EDI news and announcements.
- Contact information for help at NWCCEDI@iso.com.

Please note that until the transition to Claims Release 3.1 is complete, all electronic FROI and SROI reporting will continue to be made in accordance with the IAIABC EDI Claims Release 1.0 standard. Information regarding this standard may be found on the court's current EDI homepage: <https://www.wcc.ne.gov/programs-products-and-services/electronic-data-interchange-edi>.
